

The Bruce D. Fallis Annual Teaching Award

Bruce Fallis, M.D. was known for his outstanding teaching style and teaching abilities. The Bruce D. Fallis Annual Teaching Award is given to a Resident or Fellow who demonstrates a dedication to teach medical school students and residents. The awardee is chosen using the following data: medical student small group evaluations, peer resident evaluations, and faculty observation of a resident teaching during a rotation or at a Pathophysiology conference.

This year the endowment allows us to select five recipients of the Bruce D. Fallis Resident Teaching Award. The award winners and their futures are as follows:

Lin Jonathan He, M.D., Ph.D. – Has been selected as Co-chief Resident for 2022–23 Residents

Miriam Molani, D.O., MBA – will be joining the staff at the Sherman Oaks Hospital in Sherman Oaks, CA.

Neda Wick, M.D. – will complete the second year of her 2-year Neuropathology Fellowship at UT Southwestern Medical Center.

Estelle Oertling, M.D. – will be doing a Pediatric Pathology Fellowship at UT Southwestern Medical Center.

Jenny Weon, M.D., Ph.D. – will be doing a Clinical Informatics Fellowship at UT Southwestern Medical Center.

Congratulations to all of the winners!
