Bernice L. Hausman, Ph.D, is Professor and Chair of the Department of Humanities and Professor of Public Health Sciences at Penn State College of Medicine. Prior to Penn State, she was a faculty member in the Department of English at Virginia Tech University for 23 years. Her research examines medical controversies in the public sphere, identifying the social concerns at the root of modern dilemmas about the body, illness, and treatment in the 20th and 21st centuries. She is also the author of four books: Changing Sex: Transsexualism, Technology, and the Idea of Gender [1995], Mother’s Milk: Breastfeeding Controversies in American Culture [2003], Viral Mothers: Breastfeeding in the Age of HIV/AIDS [2011], and Anti/Vax: Reframing the Vaccination Controversy [2019]. In addition, she has authored numerous articles and book chapters.
